Learning objectives

- to assess the current status of teamwork
- to highlight and remind teams of key teamwork skills
- to highlight the need for clear communication skills
- to reinforce attention to detail and accuracy
- to boost morale and engagement
- to set standards for day-to-day working

About the activity

Each of the four teams nominates a leader, or the Facilitator can choose one for them. Leaders are given 5 minutes to study a straightforward task and then brief their team.

Each team has a card showing 58 different coloured counters. Their task is to calculate the value of all the counters – in $. Each coloured counter has a different value. For example, all the reds are worth $7 each (teams don't know this at the start).

Each team has six Clue cards giving clues on the value of the counters. But the data needs interpreting - it's not that straightforward! It involves sharing information and working together effectively.

Will teams be capable of effective teamwork to crack the clues? A fast-paced and fun learning activity for all levels!

The Power of Teams

FACTSHEET

Customer reviews

“ So much learning to draw from The Power of Teams! I used it with four groups of four delegates and they really enjoyed it. The volume went up and everyone got involved. Because it's completely different it created a lot of discussion which is what it's about. It's a challenge - and it really gets teams talking together to try to work it out. There was plenty of learning around dissecting information, having a plan/strategy, communication and leadership in a team task. I loved it and am using it again next week!
Mike Ode, Director, Potential Unearthed

“ We love Northgate Training activities as we can run the activities ourselves and they are very cost effective!
Sally Smithson, People Director, FLM

Trainer's role (full guidance supplied in Trainer's Notes)

- Divide participants into teams. You can have up to four teams at a time.
- Ask teams to choose a leader or choose one for them.
- Take leaders aside and give each a copy of the Leader's brief for 5 minutes' study. Meanwhile give each team a copy of the Participants' brief.
- After 5 minutes, leaders return to their teams with six Clue cards and the Counter chart and begin briefing.
- Allow teams 20-30 minutes to complete the task.
- Check teams' answers and lead a debrief.
- Use the two debrief cards to focus on the SIX key teamwork points that should emerge from the activity. If time, explore the six key leadership points.
